

New Home Reflects Exciting Growth for Atum

TORONTO – April 30, 2006 On April 1, 2006, Atum Corporation relocated to a more vibrant and accessible location within the city of Toronto. The centrality of this new locale has positioned Atum comfortably within the bustle of city life – a critical step for continued advancement. With its new office near Yonge Street and Sheppard Avenue, Atum is positioned in a hub of activity: employees and clients are within immediate access to TTC (Toronto Transit Commission) subways and buses, a broad range of trendy restaurants, shops, and many other commodities and attractions the city has to offer.

Toronto's energetic pulse is a perfect complement to the cutting edge stream of new ideas which are a fundamental component of Atum's continued development. CEO Jason Williams explains: "Atum has always been at the forefront of technology and as a result, our company has experienced rapid growth with sales more than doubling every year since our formation."

This move is the result of Atum staffs' sharp insight and teamwork, which have expanded services in the hosting line of business. With new features such as a data centre offering climate control, backup power generation and biometric access controls, Atum is a fully-fledged first tier hosting provider. The result? A new level of security control and network uptime to ensure safe and reliable access to critical IT resources for all its customers

Recognizing the importance of Atum's staff, Mr. Williams adds "Ultimately, our company is forged on the talent of our staff, and to ensure we have access to the largest pool of human resources, it was important for us to locate the business in close proximity to public transit. We want to find those rough diamonds just finishing school that are ready for a challenging and rewarding career in a fast paced technology company."

Atum welcomes this latest chapter as the successful fusion of progressive ideas and an alluring city. Innovative new developments are sure come from Atum, as it continues to challenge itself to further expand and claim its place as a top competitor within a cutthroat market.
